Oct 13, 2019 The reason I keep saying that is because I don't find that their app supports RAW, which is a huge pro for a professional. Within the game of golf, it is a basic rule of golf etiquette for the first player out of a group to hit the last (or only) hole first. A priori, this is sometimes not feasible because the other members of the group are not necessarily waiting in line as such at the tee. More importantly, the golfer may not know when it is the player's turn because he/she will have been playing with an unknown partner. Hence, there are situations where the players are not out in a particular order. Various apparatus have been proposed to enable the persons to play in the order desired. Some examples of such apparatus are disclosed in the following United States patents. U.S. Pat. No. 3,586,696 discloses a golf game in which a ball is divided into a plurality of portions. Different colored portions are used in different groups. A player hits a ball having a portion of the same color as the colored portion of the ball of his group and also hits a ball with a colored portion thereof different from the group his ball is in, such ball being in a body of water. U.S. Pat. No. 3,640,252 discloses a golf game where the players take turns hitting balls into a water hazard. U.S. Pat. No. 3,698,554 discloses a golf game in which players attempt to complete holes in the shortest amount of time, i.e. low score. The players are ranked according to their times on the holes. U.S. Pat. No. 3,814,013 discloses a golf game wherein players are ranked according to their score by an electronic circuit. U.S. Pat. No. 4,389,085 discloses a golf game having a separate set of holes for each player. The player scores points for putting a ball into a cup. Points are also awarded for touchdowns,
