Photo The president of the Philippines on Thursday ruled out a runoff between his chosen candidate, Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago, and Mar Roxas, whom the president picked as running mate. President Benigno Aquino III made his surprising statement in a radio interview, following a meeting with Mar Roxas and his supporters, who urged him to pick a runoff candidate against Senator Santiago, who had consistently led in recent polls. “I want to assure the nation that there will be no July 9 runoff,” he said. “We are not yet through with the race. I’m going to continue talking to the people.” Mr. Aquino was elected in 2010 by a smaller majority than previous presidents, and Ms. Santiago is the second senator to run for the presidency this year after the wife of Sen. Joker Arroyo, Manny Villar, placed first in an early poll. Mr. Aquino’s abrupt decision was immediately cheered by the Senate president, Juan Ponce Enrile, and his wife, former President Corazon Aquino, who is now Ms. Santiago’s patron. It was the second defeat for Ms. Santiago in the Senate, after she lost to a nonincumbent in 2010.

Mr. Roxas, a former House speaker who was regarded as the president's preferred candidate, rose as an energetic advocate for change in the Philippines. He made a clean break from his party, the United Nationalist Alliance, which has yet to find another presidential contender. "I could not agree more with Mr. Aquino," Mr. Roxas said, noting that although some people had pushed for a runoff, "this is not what the people want." The Aquinos have left their political party, the Liberal Party, to campaign for a post-presidential "reform package" that includes a term limit, the abolition of the more than 1,000 commissions and other government agencies and the drafting of a new Constitution. Mr. Aquino, speaking at a news conference at Malacañang Palace, promised a frank debate on his agenda, and pledged to put forward the most sweeping changes since the country's
