With the new devices out there, it can be hard to find the perfect companion. There are several things to consider, but one crucial factor to consider is the battery life. Choosing a camera that can deliver a long working time is always good, but that's not always easy to find. The iPad mini 4 is a mid-size device that fits perfectly on your arm, making it a little awkward for shooting with your existing DSLR. One way to improve the situation is by using a new macro lens, available in several models specifically for the iPad mini 4. Today, we'll focus on the two top models available. Both are from a renowned brand, and they offer a different kind of quality. Bravo The Bravo from Lensbaby is a typical macro lens with a 1:1 (aspect ratio) close-up feature, allowing you to focus from a distance of up to 3.2 inches (80 mm). This means that the focal length is exactly 100 mm, which is the same as most of the other models from this brand, including the Zoom. It also means that the lens needs to be focused on the subject before the actual image is taken. This is one of the main disadvantages, as you have to focus in order to take the shot. Also, to get a good quality image, you need to be very close to your subject, and the bonus of having a macro lens is that you have a fairly huge depth of field, so it will allow you to shoot at a larger distance. Good news is that it's an excellent budget option, as it offers a one-year warranty and only costs about $50. The only real problem is that it doesn't come with a case, so you might want to consider using an Apple case to protect it. Gear VR The Gear VR is another very popular macro lens that can be found for less than $50. This might be the ideal model for those who don't want to spend much money, but can't get away with just using the camera's stock lens (as it's already focused). Unlike the other model, it
